

BUY BONDS AND STAMPS!
Your money is needed to help finance the war.

THE BRISTOL COURIER

BRISTOL, PA., MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 22, 1943

DAILY WEATHER REPORT

Continued moderately cold today
and tonight.

Price: 2c a Copy; 10c a Week

BUTTER, LARD, FATS ARE FROZEN UNTIL RATIONING BEGINS NEXT MONDAY; 'FREEZE' IS APPLIED TO FORESTALL HOARDING

Retail Stores Given a Week for Opportunity to Replenish Inventories—Meat Not Affected—Cheeses To Be Rationed on March 29th

By Phillips J. Peck
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22—(INS)—Food conscious United States, gripped in many areas by a critical meat shortage, awoke today to find its 600,000 storekeepers prohibited from selling butter, lard, fats and oils until rationing begins next Monday.

An OPA order which went into effect last midnight applied the "freeze" to these commodities and also margarine, shortening, cooking and salad oils to prevent hoarding and forestall a wave of panic buying.

In the interim, retail stores will have an opportunity to replenish inventories which are not large enough to support heavy buying at the present time.

The order does not affect sales of meat, if the consumer is fortunate enough to find any for sale, or cheeses, which also are to be rationed beginning March 29 with the red stamps in War Ration Book 2.

Sales of canned meat and fish were halted Feb. 18 and remain "frozen" until rationing starts.

In Boston, Buffalo and New York City, thousands of war workers, soldiers and sailors on furlough and just plain citizens experienced a "meatless Sunday," unless they were lucky enough to obtain horse meat.

The New York Department of Markets said that only 18 percent of the city's shops had a satisfactory supply of meat.

In many west coast cities conditions were little better.

The "freeze" order doubtless caught millions of consumers unprepared and launched them on a week-long "fast" as far as butter and other fats and oils are concerned. Butter has been "short" for months and many stores limited customers to a quarter of a pound apiece.

When rationing starts next week the buyer will be allotted 16 ration points to purchase his share of meat, cheese, butter, lard, fats and oil requirements for that week.

Point values of the various cuts of meat, types of cheese, a pound of butter, margarine, lard and shortening and salad and cooking oils will be announced Wednesday. Mayonnaise and other salad dressings are not to be rationed at this time.

Government food experts do not anticipate that rationing will immediately correct the current maldistribution of meat supplies. It may be a week or two after the inception of the program before meat begins to flow into shortage areas.

Commenting on the forthcoming program, the OPA said:

"The necessities of total war, the food requirements of our military forces and the shortage of manpower on farms have combined to create a scarcity in the supply of all these foods for civilians at home."

"Under these circumstances there is no alternative but to see that these scarce and highly essential foods are distributed on a fair and equitable basis."

"Indeed, in recent weeks there has

Continued on Page Four

CHIEF COOPER ILL

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 22—Chief of Police Albert Cooper is seriously ill in Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., as the result of a nervous breakdown. Sgt. Andrew Thompson is in command of the borough police department during Chief Cooper's absence.

Continued on Page Four

BOY FOR YORKS

A son was born to Capt. and Mrs. Frank York, of North Carolina, at Harriman Hospital on Saturday evening. Capt. York is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Continued on Page Three

LOCAL WEATHER OBSERVATIONS
FOR 24 HOUR PERIOD ENDING 8 A. M.
AT ROHM & HAAS WEATHER OBSERVATORY
BRISTOL, PA.

Temperature Readings

Maximum ..... 38 F
Minimum ..... 28 F
Range ..... 10 F

Hourly Temperatures

8 a. m. yesterday ..... 30
9 ..... 33
10 ..... 34
11 ..... 35
12 noon ..... 36
1 p. m. ..... 36
2 ..... 37
3 ..... 37
4 ..... 38
5 ..... 38
6 ..... 37
7 ..... 32
8 ..... 31
9 ..... 31
10 ..... 32
11 ..... 31
12 midnight ..... 31
1 a. m. today ..... 30
2 ..... 28
3 ..... 28
4 ..... 28
5 ..... 29
6 ..... 29
7 ..... 29
8 ..... 29
9 ..... 30

C. Relative Humidity ..... 73
Precipitation (inches) ..... 0.5
Snowfall (inches) ..... 1/2

TIDES AT BRISTOL

High water ..... 4:26 a. m., 4:47 p. m.
Low water ..... 11:43 a. m.

RED CROSS WAR FUND DONATIONS

Contributions may be made to C. Donald Moyer, treasurer, c/o The Bristol Trust Company, or to Red Cross Headquarters, 120 Mill Street. Checks should be drawn to the order of the Red Cross War Fund.

The following donations are acknowledged today by Red Cross war fund drive workers in this area:

Miss Marian B. Smith ..... $ 25.00
(Mrs. W. A. Haines ..... 10.00
Mr. & Mrs. Harry G. Wister ..... 10.00
Mr. & Mrs. George Stanley ..... 10.00
Pasquale DiLorenzo ..... 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. F. Manze ..... 5.00
Joseph Mathias ..... 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Donnell ..... 5.00
Blackford Memorial Sunday School ..... 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. Walter Fagan ..... 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. Minkema ..... 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. D. Irons ..... 5.00
Olwyn Haines ..... 5.00
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vanree ..... 5.00
Mr. & Mrs. George Garretson ..... 5.00
Friend ..... 5.00
"Buddy" Eckert ..... 5.00
Carmela D. Venti ..... 4.00
Mr. & Mrs. J. Evans ..... 4.00
Mr. & Mrs. L. Tomlinson ..... 4.00
Mr. & Mrs. Francis G. Ellis ..... 3.00
Mr. & Mrs. J. Bustra ..... 3.00
Mrs. J. Conyers ..... 3.00
Mr. & Mrs. C. Edmundson ..... 2.00
Mrs. D. Warner ..... 2.00
Mrs. Angelo Mace ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. Carlo Juno ..... 2.00
Mrs. J. Gilardi ..... 2.00
Mrs. Bertha Haas ..... 2.00
Rev. W. E. P. Haas ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. James Boltz, Jr. ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. L. Farina ..... 2.00
Wm. Pruet ..... 2.00
Mrs. Mary Aneker ..... 2.00
C. Young ..... 2.00
Mrs. J. Taylor ..... 2.00
Mrs. F. Jackson ..... 2.00
Mrs. W. Crawford ..... 2.00
Mrs. A. Robinson ..... 2.00
Mrs. M. Berger ..... 2.00
Mrs. H. Nyse ..... 2.00
Mrs. T. Swope ..... 2.00
Mrs. J. Frake ..... 2.00
Mrs. J. Welker ..... 2.00
Anna M. Smith ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. Russell Flair ..... 2.00
Mrs. Jane Wilson ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. A. Van Haan ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. Ralph Linck ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. James Danbury ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. John Potsky ..... 2.00
Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Parr ..... 2.00
Charles McIlvaine ..... 2.00
Edward McIlvaine ..... 2.00
Carmela Romano ..... 2.00
Elmer Pascinno ..... 2.00
Robert Cox ..... 2.00
Miss Jennie Slater ..... 2.00
Mrs. Katherine Russo ..... 2.00

Continued on Page Two

GOVERNOR CALLS UPON ALL CITIZENS TO AID IN VICTORY GARDEN PROGRAM; CONTACTS A BRISTOL WOMEN'S CLUB

Governor Martin called upon all citizens to cooperate to the fullest extent with the Victory Garden program. The following communication from the Governor was read to Travel Club also in seeing that the surplus is canned and preserved for home use during next winter.

"Every Victory Garden which we plant and grow and harvest in our backyards and community plots will be not only a contribution to the war effort but also an exemplification of the spirit of self-reliance which American democracy is fighting today to preserve," the Governor said.

"Recognizing the important part that food will play in winning the war and with the utmost confidence that Pennsylvania will reach its goal in this program as it has in every other phase of the war effort I call upon all citizens to cooperate with their Council

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

(By International News Service)

The final battle for possession of all of North Africa was raging today as the jaws of a giant nutcracker closed in on Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in Southern Tunisia.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, repeating to the world a message from British Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, last night announced that a large-scale assault on Rommel's Mareth line positions had at last been launched.

The Eighth Army was striking at the German positions under cover of a tremendous aerial offensive, front line dispatches revealed. Meanwhile, the usually-reliable Algiers radio reported that Montgomery's hardy desert veterans already had scored some gains.

American tank and infantry forces simultaneously were pushing on toward Maknassy on the strategic railway to the Tunisian east coast after capturing Sented station.

The Germans admitted that the Eighth Army and elements of the first American armored division "began movements" Saturday night which can be interpreted as large-scale attempts to unhinge Field Marshal Rommel's positions." A Berlin radio broadcast said 50 British tanks and 2,000 other vehicles were moving northeast from Ksar Rihlane, southwest of the Mareth Line. In what appeared to be move to outflank Rommel's lower fortifications.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

On the central front northwest of Moscow, other Red army columns crushed a Nazi counter-attack north of Zhizdra, 40 miles northeast of Bryansk. At least 2,000 enemy troops were killed in the attack, and several dozen Nazi tanks and 27 field guns were destroyed.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

On the central front northwest of Moscow, other Red army columns crushed a Nazi counter-attack north of Zhizdra, 40 miles northeast of Bryansk. At least 2,000 enemy troops were killed in the attack, and several dozen Nazi tanks and 27 field guns were destroyed.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

On the central front northwest of Moscow, other Red army columns crushed a Nazi counter-attack north of Zhizdra, 40 miles northeast of Bryansk. At least 2,000 enemy troops were killed in the attack, and several dozen Nazi tanks and 27 field guns were destroyed.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

Two American columns meanwhile were driving on Maknassy from Sened station and southeast from El Guettar, along the road to Gabes.

In Russia, the Soviet high command admitted the fall of Belgorod, important rail junction less than 50 miles north of Kharkov, but reported that Russian troops had captured an unnamed town on the Donets river front.

Sixth Ward Residents To Raise Funds for Plaque

At a social gathering of a number of Sixth Ward residents held last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Jolly, 1812 Benson Place, it was unanimously decided to hold a meeting Wednesday evening at Karp's Hall, Farragut avenue, at eight o'clock, to adopt plans to canvas the 6th ward residents for contributions, the purpose of which is to raise funds to erect a plaque in commemoration of the 6th ward boys who have left the district to join the U. S. armed forces.

All interested are invited to attend this meeting Wednesday night. William J. Dougherty, Jackson street, is acting as president, pro tem, until such time as officers are elected. Parents of sixth ward boys are especially invited to attend.

PHILADELPHIAN DIES HERE OF HEART ATTACK

Lifeless Body of Ralph Copeland is Found in The Grundy Park

Fleetwings Workers To Be Given Pills for Absenteeism

WAS EN ROUTE TO TRAIN

A Philadelphia man, evidently stricken with a heart attack as he was en route to the local railroad station last evening following a day's work and ill, is to ask for a vitamin tablet and then all of your trouble will be over and production will jump.

The distribution of the pills is described as a second step in a drive to combat illness and absenteeism and according to an announcement by President Frank deGanahl, distribution of the pills will begin today.

Nurses will give packets of 10 tablets to each employee asking for them. Included will be instructions on how the tablets should be taken over a period of days. Voluntary reports will be made by workers so that results of the treatment may be checked.

Fleetwings' first step in the drive was the distribution of cold vaccine capsules which began March 1. Within two hours after the dispensaries opened the initial supply of capsules had been given out.

Mrs. Ella Riggs Cross, 79, Dies; Resided at Langhorne

LANGHORNE, Mar. 22—Mrs. Ella Riggs Cross, aged 79 years, died yesterday at the home of Mrs. Harriet Mitchell, W. Maple avenue. She had made her home with Mrs. Mitchell for the past seven years.

Mrs. Cross is survived by one sister, Mrs. A. E. A. Bronson, Hulmeville, and a grandson, Edward F. Batten, Fort Benning, Ga.

The Rev. William E. Hancock, pastor of Langhorne Presbyterian Church, will conduct the service at the Horner funeral home, on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Berlin, N. J. Friends may call Tuesday evening between seven and nine o'clock.

The room was decorated in blue and pink. Favors were small red baskets filled with mints and peanuts. Two cakes decorated the center of the table, one with eight candles and the other with three, the latter honoring Mr. and Mrs. Brown's grandson, "Jimmy" Kirk, who will celebrate his third birthday anniversary on March 28th. Refreshments were served. Games were played, with prizes being won by "Jimmy" Kirk, "Georgie" Ford, Jane Crawford and Frank Lynn. Mary was the recipient of many gifts.

Those attending: "Georgie" Ford, Myra Whyno, "Johnny" and Harry Southrey, Joan Esterline, Jane Crawford, "Bobby" Carol, "Jimmy" Frank and Betty Lynn, Joyce Pray, Kenneth and Mary Alice Brown, "Tommy" Kroonze, "Jimmy" Marilyn and Verna Kirk, Mrs. Joseph Kroonze, Mrs. Norman Kirk, Mrs. William Brown, the Misses Edith Hobbs, Matilda Brown, and Alma Southrey.

FORT KNOX, Ky., Mar. 22—Skillfully trained in the use and repair of the deadly weapons of an American armored division, Private First Class Frederick H. Cotchett, Bristol R. D. No. 2, today had been graduated from the gunnery department of the Armored Force School.

The graduates were announced from the offices of Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Chief of the Armored Force.

During their concentrated four-week course, the men studied weapons ranging in size from the Thompson sub-machine gun, or "Tommy gun," which a soldier can sling on a bouncing military motorcycle, to the large-caliber canon.

These canon were fired first indoors with sub-caliber ammunition, which not only trains a man as carefully as does the higher caliber, but also saves the taxpayers' money. During this period, the men fired from "wobbly plates," which

The Bristol Courier

Established 1910
Published Every Evening (Except Sunday) at Beaver and Garden Sts., Bristol, Pa. Bell Phone 846
Only Daily Paper in Lower Bucks County
BRISTOL PRINTING COMPANY and Published
Incorporated May 27, 1914
Serrill D. Defetson President
Serrill D. Defetson Managing Editor
Ellie E. Ratcliffe Secretary
Lester D. Thorne Treasurer
Subscription Price per year, in advance, $4.00; Six Months, $2.60; Three Months, $1.00.

The Courier is delivered by carrier in Bristol, Edgely, Tullytown, Bridgewater, Coopersburg, Wauhatchie, and Hummelville. Bath, Addison, Northville and Torresdale Manor for ten cents a week.

JOB PRINTING
The Courier has the most complete commercial printing department in Bucks County. Work is performed promptly and satisfactorily done.

Entered as Second Class Mail matter at the Post Office at Bristol, Pa.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE has the exclusive rights to use for republication in any form all news dispatches credited to or from other news services. This paper is also exclusively entitled to use for republication all the local or undated news published herein.

MONDAY, MARCH 22, 1943

MARKETING MEAT

The death of Jacob Fowler in his ninetieth year in New York City last week brought to mind the striking evolution there has been in marketing of fresh meat in the last seventy years. Mr. Fowler was credited with having brought the first Western dressed beef to the New York market.

The marketing evolution of which this was a part still continues, with an influence in the meat business that will accrue incalculably to the fortunes of the meat producing regions of the nation. It is inevitable that meat will move to the greater centers of consumption more and more in the dressed state instead of on the hoof.

Practices which are appearing because of wartime necessity, such as deboning before trans-Atlantic shipment will continue to be expanded. There is a decided advantage in refrigerated shipments that are compact.

DIETARY CHANGES

Now that Americans have entered a period of food rationing which will become much more stringent before it begins to ease up, what are the chances of dietary changes winning permanent acceptance?

Those who are best acquainted with the dietary habits of Americans do not see much chance of it. Some items such as brains and kidneys might edge up the list and become as popular as liver and tongue. But Americans are expected to return to their preference for thick, juicy beefsteaks and pork roasts.

Dehydration is making gains because of the necessities of war transportation. Will dehydrated fruits, vegetables and meats win sufficient consumer demand to support these industries on an expanding basis? Hardly. Dejuicing is deleterious to flavor and other qualities and much of the public will discard it at the first opportunity. Seven men carry capsule rations for emergencies, but no one can envision the post-war American imbibing his meal in one swallow.

PROTEINS SCARCITY

It is not yet certain that the United States will have no alternative but to surrender some of the scientific livestock and poultry feeding methods developed in recent years that have made it the leading meat, dairy and poultry products producer in the world. But in many areas a scarcity of proteins is developing and it is possible that not all demands can be met.

Corn, hay and farm-grown grains are always the basis for livestock feeding and to a large extent for poultry feeding, but scientifically balanced rations call for supplementary products. Animal proteins used commercially include fish meal, packing house by-products and dried skim milk. All are scarce due to war conditions.

Protein alternates include soy bean, cottonseed and peanut meal. These are in increased supply but feed men are unable to match the rising demand. There is an estimated 20 per cent shortage in proteins if the country is to meet its food goals.

Fortunately, the country has reserves of grains and hay in most feeding areas. Pastures will soon be in condition to ease the demand for proteins. And a tremendous soy bean acreage will be in the ground in the spring. This suggests the imminent need of an increased capacity for soy bean processing.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol June 2, 1881. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Dr. O. S. Sands, of Tullytown, has gone to Colorado to take charge of a silver mine . . .

At Joseph Sherman's planing mill the workmen have been working 12 hours a day turning out 6,000 strawberry boxes per day besides making crates to hold them.

Bristol is fortunate in the way of sporting matters. She will soon have a reputation in that direction. First, David Wright won the foot race; then the Keystone baseball club gained a victory in Burlington; and, last, but not least, the "Esther" carried off a prize.

The "Central News" is a new paper just started at Perkasie, in this county. Mahlon S. Sellers is the publisher. The paper is well filled with local news of its neighborhood, and rejoices in a heading of original design which it claims is all its own.

Mrs. Harriet Bailey, the mother of Charles S. Bailey, Esq., and Mr. William F. Bailey, died at the residence of the latter last Sunday, at an advanced age, being in her 80th year. She was a member of the Methodist Church, which she served faithfully during her long and useful life.

Her funeral was a very large one, the funeral being held at the Methodist Church.

No really high toned organ grinder carries his organ on his back. To be up to the style he has a horse and wagon to make his triumphal marches through the country. One of these triumphal chaps visited Bristol this week.

Mr. John Wanamaker's "Tally Ho" coach has started on its summer tour. It is drawn by six handsome grey steeds. Accompanying it are two liveried "guards" and four "distinguished agents," who scatter thousands of circulars and cards, setting forth the attractive features of the "Grand Depot" and "Oak Hall." The equipage arrived in Bristol yesterday and drove through the streets with a bugle sounding its advent. Perhaps it reminded people of the time when the old stage coaches used to come rushing through the town with the United States mail, and then perhaps it didn't . . .

It has been everywhere noticed that the severity of winter storms arrested the blossoming of peach trees. On a broken down limb, hanging alone by a couple of inches of bark, Mr. William Bache noticed in his garden a good display of blossoms which he carefully cherished, the result being the setting on of 22 prospective peaches. Latterly, from the inability of the weakened limb, the prospect is lessened to about half a dozen giving promise of healthy maturity.

A new disease has attacked the cattle in various parts of Burlington County, N. J., and has resulted fatally in a number of cases. The symptoms are said to be entirely different from those of pleuro-pneumonia.

The common council of Beverly, N. J., has refused to grant licenses to the hotels and saloons.

The Great Game of Politics

Continued From Page One

tion Board was wrecked. And this year, while still bristling with Lewis' hostility, the pressure these unctuous pro-Administration labor leaders are putting on the President is exactly the direction Mr. Lewis wants it put—namely, against the War Labor Board (successor to the NLMB) and against its Little Steel formula, which had been generally accepted by labor itself as fair. Now, they have a dozen reasons why it isn't fair. Considering these things, it is natural to be apprehensive lest the conference between the President and the labor leaders, scheduled for today, lead to another "compromise" which again will demonstrate that this Administration either cannot PERHAPS, he will. Certainly, he would like to and certainly he ought to. Certainly, also, as Mr. Arthur Krock pointed out in the New York Times the other day, he has both the plan to operate the mines and the power. The plan was evolved by his predecessor, the late Theodore Roosevelt, and there is all the necessary authority in the President's expanded war powers. All that is needed is the will to use them. If he has that, then Mr. Lewis' bluff—if it is a bluff—will be called. If it is not a bluff, then the Government of the United States will have proved its strength and character; the labor leaders will have been taught a needed lesson and we then can get on with the war. But, another compromise, which in reality is a concession, will set us back, make everything harder.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism. Yet, when it comes to the question of extending union power and raising wages, they are always willing to join Mr. Lewis in nullifying the President, disrupting the economic front and risking disaster to the nation. Of the three, Mr. Lewis is to be preferred. At least, he is not a hypocrite.

PLAUSIBLE AS may be Mr. Lewis' case in a time of peace, there is neither excuse nor defense for it in a time of war. Nevertheless, he is far more honest and far less insincere than the Messrs. Murray and Green. Mr. Lewis makes no pretension of friendship for the President and no profession of partiality for the New Deal—quite the contrary. On the other hand, the Messrs. Murray and Green enthusiastically endorse every Roosevelt proposal no matter how costly and cloudy. Moreover, they constantly proclaim their personal devotion to the Commander in Chief and are loud in praise of their own unselfish patriotism.

Parties

Social Events

Activities

Volunteers To Serve With The Red Cross Overseas

NEWTOWN, Mar. 22.—A young Newtown woman, Miss Elaine Stradling, has volunteered for service with the Red Cross overseas.

Miss Stradling, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Stradling, and a former member of Newtown high school faculty, will leave on March 29th for a course of instruction at Washington, D. C.

She has recently been a member of Somerville, N. J., high school faculty in the French department. She has been granted a leave of absence to serve with the Red Cross. Miss Stradling, a graduate of Newtown high school and Dickinson College, studied during one summer at the Sorbonne, Paris.

In a Personal Way ---

INTERESTING bits of news mainly about people you know. A chronicle of the activities of the people of Bristol; their goings and comings. ---

To arrange for publication of weddings, telephone The Bristol Courier, Bristol 846, notifying at least a few days in advance the date of ceremony. Engagements announcements must be submitted in writing.

Today's Quiet Moment
(By the Rev. James R. Galley)
Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

Hear us, O God, as we call upon thy Name. We come before thy throne in deep humility, feeling more than ever before our tremendous need of thee. We rejoice in the privilege of stepping out of the worries of the world into the peace of thy presence. As the sailor rejoices in the calm of the port after experiencing the waves of the sea, so we rejoice in this moment of communion in which we might receive strength for the tasks of the day. So bless us, O God, that we might be enabled to live victorious lives. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

his parents on Jackson street.

Mr. and Mrs. William David and Mrs. William Lukens, Jenkintown, and Mrs. Warren Drumm, Glenside, were Friday guests of friends in town.

Corp. Walter Repella returned to Camp Crowder, Mo., after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Repella, Jackson street.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Ann Sothern and Melvyn Douglas come to the screen as a new romantic team in a new idea in comedy entertainment, in "Three Hearts for Julia," showing at the Grand Theatre today and Tuesday. Miss Sothern takes the flippancy of Maisie and Douglas becomes a rather serious journalist in their new characters.

Complications start when Douglas returns from two years abroad to find his wife, Julia (Miss Sothern), planning to divorce him and completely absorbed in the affairs of a feminine symphony orchestra.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Although a score of noted Hollywood actors and actresses played in support of Paul Muni in "Commandos Strike at Dawn" now at the Bristol Theatre, only two per cent of the cast of over a thousand were professional screen players. The others were Canadian soldiers, sailors or flyers, loaned by Dominion defense authorities to insure the picture's authenticity.

RITZ THEATRE

Rita Hayworth, Fred Astaire and Jerome Kern combine their brilliant talents in a motion picture so fascinating, so delightful, as to merit its enthusiastic Hollywood appraisal as "the greatest picture of their lives!" It opened yesterday at the Ritz Theatre. It is "You Were Never Lovelier."

George School Plans A Farm Work Camp

Continued From Page One

mato picking season. This will be the period when the greatest demands for labor to harvest the crops is made.

In view of the large number of boys who have already applied for work on Bucks County farms it is certain that the boys will be carefully selected and only those who are able and willing to do a hard day's work will be chosen. If any boy does not measure up to the standards of the group he will be replaced by one from the waiting list. The George School farm camp is to be planned in co-operation with Mr. Wil-ham Greenawalt, county agricultural agent, who will provide a balanced program which will benefit the boys and maintain their morale. Stevenson Fletcher, also an instructor at George School will be in charge of the work of the boys. Farmers should contact him if workers are needed and he will supervise their work. Under Mr. Fletcher there will be two assistants not yet named and a staff of older men who will work with and supervise the boys. Current farm wages will be paid and the boys board will be deducted therefrom.

T. Sidney Cadwallader, 2nd, young Yardley attorney, will be director of the whole camp and is already busy selecting staff and workers. He reports that already much interest has been shown in this camp and he hopes that George School will be able to supplement the splendid work done by local students through the co-operation of the school superintendents in Bucks County.

HULMEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Moser entertained at a family dinner yesterday in honor

LANGHORNE

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Stoddard and daughter, Cleveland, O., have returned to Langhorne to make their home. They were former residents here.

James Lyon, son of Mrs. Herbert Walker, of Fieldstone Farm, arrived home on Wednesday for the spring vacation from Lawrenceville Preparatory School, Lawrenceville, N. J., where he is a junior. He is recuperating from a severe case of chicken pox.

Today

and

Tomorrow

FIRST GREAT SCREEN DRAMA OF TODAY'S GREAT HEROES...AN EXCITING ROMANTIC ADVENTURE!

MAKE PROVISION IN ADVANCE OF ACTUAL NEED FOR A FAMILY BURIAL SECTION IN BEAUTIFUL EVERGREEN MEMORIAL PARK!

TO THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

Providing Protection for the Family

NO ONE IS SO RICH, SO POWERFUL, so strong but that some day he will need a place of burial for himself and his family. NOBODY knows when that day will be. HE IS WISE who faces this FACT FRANKLY, PROMPTLY and FEARLESSLY. The way of wisdom calls for PROVIDING in ADVANCE against this HOUR of NEED when the summons may come unexpectedly for you and yours.

EVERGREEN MEMORIAL PARK offers you beautiful choices for your FINAL resting place at PRICES that are LOWEST and on TERMS that are EASY.

OWNERSHIP IN ADVANCE OF NEED

Brings "Peace of Mind" and "Sense of Security"

$100 Down
and
One Dollar
A Year

Selection of Location can be made within 2 years

Each Family Plot contains 4 graves including

Perpetual Care

A BEAUTIFUL LAWN CEMETERY WITHOUT TOMBSTONES

Send In $1.00 With Coupon For Reservation

A Limited Amount Offered

Your Money Refunded If Not Satisfactory

Evergreen Memorial Park is located at

Bristol and Trevose Roads

Executive Offices:

EVERGREEN MEMORIAL PARK

1700 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Telephone Pen. 4545

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY

I am interested in receiving further information regarding your $1.00 plan.

Name .....

Address .....

City and State .....

GRAND MONDAY and TUESDAY

Bargain Matinee Monday at 2 P. M.

Tuesday and Wednesday Matinees Discontinued for Duration

THE MAGAZINE OF THE SCREEN—MARCH OF TIME Showing "THE NAVY AND THE NATION" Cartoon, "BARNYARD WAAC" Latest News Events

WED. AND THURS. "JOURNEY FOR MARGARET" With ROBERT YOUNG and LARAINA DAY

100 PERSONS LOST 14 to 20 Lbs. in 30 Days

each using AYDS under the direction of Dr. C. G. Elmer. Testimony before a Notary Public. The weight loss is 14 to 20 lbs. an average. In fact, one overweight, a trained nurse, lost 29 lbs. in just 30 days of this test.

AYDS helps many lose 5 to 50 lbs. It is an easy diet to follow. No exercise. No drugs. No exercise. Vitamin A, B, C and important minerals supply vital nutrition instead of excess calories. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. 25¢ a Box... enough for 30 days. JUST PHONE

UNITED PHARMACY
231 MHI Street, Bristol
106 Bellevue Avenue, Langhorne

Never hit a man when he's down. He might get back up.

FINAL SHOWING

TUESDAY—
Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre in
"The Boggie Man Will Get
You" and
"Twilight On the Trail"

DIAMOND TEAM DETERMINED TO DEFEAT THE ROHM & HAAS FIVE IN LEAGUE BATTLE HERE TONIGHT

It will be a determined Diamond team that will face the Rohm & Haas quintet tonight in the second match of the three-game series to decide the championship of the Bristol Basketball League. In the preliminary game, the Oldtimers will play the youthful Bristol Scholastics. First game will get under way at 7:45 o'clock.

The Rohm and Haas team is one up in the series as the result of its 33-32 triumph of last Thursday night when "Chuck" Klein dropped in a double-decker in the last five seconds of the game. This game was one of the most thrilling contests of the season.

What handicapped the Diamond team last Thursday night was the lack of substitutes. Manager Nichols had but six players present and had to keep shifting one player about to give his men a rest. However, tonight there is a strong possibility that Keitch and Miksis, the high-scoring tads of the Burlington high school, will be present.

Burlington was eliminated for the Jersey tournament last week, leaving Miksis and Keitch free to play on the local court. In their last game of the tourney, the Jersey pair scored 30 points with Keitch getting 15 points in the second half of the game.

If the two Burlington players are in the Diamond lineup tonight, then the Mill Streeters will have the offense it has been seeking. The team played fine defensive ball against Rohm & Haas last Thursday but lacked sufficient scoring power.

The other members of the Diamond squad who will see action in the game are: Sak, Proty, Boyle, Wollard, Woolley, and Mignoni.

The Rohm & Haas team was the underdog in its last contest with the Big Green and played good ball throughout the game. Many of the fans were waiting for the chemical workers to crack up in the last period but this never came and when the going got tougher in the last few moments of the tilt, the Rohm & Haas team matched field goals with their younger foes.

Manager Jesse Vanzant will most likely start the same team that carried him through the first game with the forwards being Rue and Carnvale, center, Rice; guards, Vanzant and DeLuca.

The preliminary game should be an interesting contest to watch as the league's Oldtimers play the Scholastics. The Oldtimers will have a team composed of "Henry" Morgan, Ray Pie, Ray Nichols, Walt Colvert, Mike DeRisi, Bobby Weideman, Herman Schmidt, and Paul Voltz. This team held a practice session and feel that they can put it over the Scholastics.

The Scholastics will be a quintet composed of mostly players from this season's Bristol high team and will have Mayo Scancella, Angelo Cordisco, Joe Potena, Pete Miller, Johnny Messanella, Len Simons, Fisher, and several others.

This game will be refereed by Joe Diamanti.

Plan Testimonial Dinner For Quakertown High Five

QUAKERTOWN, Mar. 22—A community testimonial dinner is to be given in honor of members of the boys' basketball team of Quakertown high school. The date set is March 29th, the affair to be held at a local restaurant.

The squad of 15 players, and the coach, John O. Barth, will be guests of honor. The team is champion of the Bux-Mont League.

The girls' basketball team of the school and the coach, Miss Marion Affelbach, will also be present.

Jacob L. Stoneback, member of Quakertown school board, will be toastmaster.

"Bill" Anderson, coach of the Lower Merion high school state champions, will speak.

TRAP 300 RABBITS IN UPPER PART OF BUCKS

SELLERSVILLE, Mar. 22—Clarence Mumbauer, Perkasie, a deputy game protector of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, has met with unparalleled success in trapping game animals in the Sellersville, Perkasie and Quakertown area this year.

In an illustrated address to the Sellersville Kiwanis club, Protector Mumbauer showed how he has caught several hundred rabbits, pheasants and dozens of opossums, a few groundhogs, muskrats, squirrels and other animals in an effort to pave the way for victory gardeners this spring.

we downed an early breakfast of papaya, toast and pineapple and a steaming cup of black Brazilian coffee followed by cigarettes.

Lt. Morena Saint-Brisson joined us as we strolled toward the plane.

Mechanics were checking the engines and a ground crew was loading on supplies to be dropped off at an island garrison more than 200 miles off shore. The cargo, among other things, included several sacks of soap to the soldiers by a women's organization in Rio de Janeiro. A batch of heavy bombs already had been lifted into the ship's bulging belly.

Lieutenant Saint-Brisson and the major are in the pilots' cabin now as we begin to log the flight. Right back of them is Sgt. Admar Agricola, an 18-year-old radioman who wants to be a pilot. Sgt. Monclar Azevedo is in the bombardier's spot and a Brazilian naval officer, Lt. Tertius Pires Rebeollo, doing liaison work with the airforce, is manning the tail gun. We are set to take off.

The engines are turning over. They give vent to a mighty roar, and the plane skips along the dusty runway and lifts itself above the tile and palm topped houses and shacks about the field below.

The airship climbs fast. At 500 feet, a vista of beauty opens ahead. There is the jade green and cobalt blue of the South Atlantic stretching away toward the sunny horizon in one direction and lapping the sandy beaches in the other. A small town is below, its white steeped church a most prominent structure from the air.

Major Hardman turns the stick over to Lt. Saint-Brisson, and comes back to see how his passenger is faring while sitting on a bag of soap. The major points to a parachute. "Nae bon," he says, and smiles. (You already knew the chutes weren't much good at 500 feet, but you didn't relish the idea of being told again.)

An ocean chart is in the major's hand. He points to a small dot. "To here we fly," he said, and over the edge of the engines you shout back, "Si, Major . . . Aqui . . ." to demonstrate a complete understanding that the dot is that island we're headed for.

A tiny blot appears on the horizon. In the cockpit, there is a flurry of conversation in Portuguese accompanied with gestures. The bomber noses toward the thing that may be that Nazi "soob" that Major Hardman hopes to sink.

But it isn't. It's a lone merchant ship.

The plane comes closer and closer and all hands express wonderment that the vessel is prowling around unescorted. The answer comes when we are close enough to see giant flags of neutral Argentina painted on its sides.

Major Hardman circles the Argentine vessel, and moves on.

The plane turns southward, then northward from our set course due east. All eyes are peeled for a periscope, but all in sight is the expanse of water and sky. U-boats are known to operate in this area. Finding them, however, is like looking for the needle in a submerged haystack.

Heavy thunder clouds are gathering. It's rough riding. Feathery white caps clutter the water below. The bomber buckles the minor maelstrom like a bronco in the rodeo, and soon has easy sailing again.

Ahead now lies the island, just a speck of Terra Firma amid so much blue salty water. There is where the cargo must be dumped.

The island quickly looms larger. It is hilly. Its foliage is green but scrubby. A terrific torrent of ocean-borne wind whips up dirt on the field in sizeable cyclonic swirls. American pilots had warned that landing on this strip of barren ground would be a tricky business, but Brazil's aviators have a daredevil streak.

Major Hardman pulls the bomber's nose down toward earth. The plane glides through the bumpy wind current, touches the field, bounces as though bounding into a ground loop, then settles to the scream of braked wheels and comes to a stop.

A small band of Brazilian soldiers, carrying bayoneted rifles, are present to unload the cargo. The field, otherwise, is as lonely as an untrilled meadow. The army's garrison is miles across the hill.

There is time only for a brief stretch on the ground.

We climb back aboard, taxi to the very limit of the runway.

The take-off was perfect and probably because the cargo has been unloaded, the ship climbs easily off the field.

Hours tick away slowly, almost boringly. Search for a sub goes on. It's lunch time and the major breaks out a thermos jug of hot coffee. We all drink from the tin top cup.

Still many miles from land, the bomber wings over a splotch of coral reef, giving away altitude for a close look at the place. A lighthouse is located here, but since the war began the light is out and the keeper has left his barren abode.

Major Hardman says we're heading homeward. Soon it will be dusk.

And now, a couple of hours later, the coastline of Brazil is dead ahead. There's the little town we flew over early this morning. And the sandy airfield where this thunderbird of war makes its nest.

We land. The flight is finished.

I had seen our South American allies fighting the war with fliers and men, and can agree they're doing it well with the facilities at their command.

The War at A Glance

Continued From Page One

stroyed in two days of fierce fighting. Elsewhere on the far-flung eastern front, Russian columns broke the long hill in the Caucasian fighting by cross-a move, if successful, would cut the Allied sea lifeline to Port Darwin, in northern Australia.

Meanwhile, Allied bombers attacked two Japanese destroyers and six merchantmen in far-flung offensive sweeps yesterday that ranged from the Kai Islands in the west to the Solomon sea, in the Eastern part of the sprawling Southwest Pacific command.

Other Allied bombers battered the New Britain base at Gasmata and the Madang-Finschhafen area of Northern New Guinea.

Use the Classified Columns of The Courier for Quick and Gratifying Results

Weather Records Tell You When to Start Garden

Average Date of Last Killing Frost for Principal Cities. From U. S. Department of Agriculture Weather Reports.

Two dates which govern garden operations in the spring are: The date when all deep frost is cut, and the soil becomes dry enough to spade; and the date after which tender plants are reasonably safe from frost.

Hardy plants, which are those that stand light frosts without injury, can be sown as soon as the ground can be worked; and this date is dependent more often upon rainfall than upon temperature. Tender plants cannot be sown, or set out, until danger of frost is over; and if they are started indoors, or in a hot-bed or cold frame, the time to start them is from six to eight weeks before the frost-proof date.

Inquiry among gardeners in your locality will establish the date which is generally accepted as frost-proof. The map which accompanies this article was prepared from United States Department of Agriculture weather reports, to show the average date of the last killing frost of spring in various cities.

This average date is not a frost-proof date, because just as there is no average man, there is no average weather. While in Chicago, for example, the average date of the last killing frost is April 15, in the

BASKETBALL

TONIGHT—2 GAMES

Playoffs for Championship

Oldtimers-Scholastics

Diamond-Rehm & Haas

MUTUAL AID HALL

Tapoff: 7:45 P. M.

General Admission: 50¢

Building Associations Low Income Savings

Don't let your boy or girl get the idea that only the wealthy can save money.

Building Associations are the greatest of Savings institutions for the wage earner and the lower salaried man.

We have one investor not yet 40 years old, one that did not complete the work of the grammar school. This investor secured a job, began saving and now has $3,000 in cash from Building Association stock matured and is putting away $10.00 a month on more stock.

Every boy and girl earning $15.00 a week or more should be saving some of that money. One share at One Dollar a month is a start and will teach them thrifty habits.

Don't let your boy or girl get the habit of spending, spending, spending every dollar they make. You know it is a bad habit. Stop it now and they will bless you in years to come.

BRISTOL BUILDING ASSOCIATION
HARRIMAN BUILDING ASSOCIATION
UNION BUILDING & LOAN COMPANY
FIDELITY BUILDING ASSOCIATION
CROYDEN BUILDING ASSOCIATION

HOWARD I. JAMES,
HORACE N. DAVIS,
Solicitors,
205 Radcliffe St.,
Bristol, Pa.

Butter, Lard, Fats Are Frozen Until Rationing Begins Next Monday

Continued From Page One

been no question in anybody's mind as to the need to ration these foods—the only real problem was how to ration them."

Meantime, the Agriculture Department advised meat slaughterers, both large and small, that slaughter permits are available today, although they do not become effective until March 31.

The department urged slaughterers to obtain the permits early and avoid difficulties later.

Under the permit system, designed to help stamp out the black market in meat, slaughterers will be required to stamp their permit numbers on all cuts of meat and keep records of all meat sold.

In an illustrated address to the Sellersville Kiwanis club, Protector Mumbauer showed how he has caught several hundred rabbits, pheasants and dozens of opossums, a few groundhogs, muskrats, squirrels and other animals in an effort to pave the way for victory gardeners this spring.

Keep Constant Patrol For Enemy U-Boats

Continued From Page One

briquet case, however, he explained thoroughly the operations for today while

GIRLS & WOMEN WANTED

BE PATRIOTIC—WORK IN VITAL INDUSTRY

HELP SUPPLY "FOOD FOR FREEDOM"

Clean and Quiet Work Packaging Seeds—35c per Hour

8 Hours Daily, between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m.

MEN WANTED

EXPERIENCED PACKERS, PACKERS HELPERS

AND WAREHOUSE MEN

APPLY IMMEDIATELY TO MR. MINSTER

D. LANDRETH SEED CO.

CANAL STREET

PHONE BRISTOL 858

We Are Now In A Position To Solve Your Laundry Problem

CALL BRISTOL 511

SAFETY LAUNDRY

SERGEANT PAT OF RADIO PATROL

By EDDIE SULLIVAN
and CHARLIE SCHMIDT

CHRIS SPIES ON THE GIRL OF THE "YELLOW FEATHER TERROR"

3-22

MEANWHILE SLUMPED IN THE FRONT SEAT OF THE PARKED CAR..

